HOW TO SAVE A WET CELL PHONE

1. Utter a few choice expletives then pluck phone from bowl.

2. Do NOT turn it on, Instead remove battery and SIM card pronte.

Towels are good. Vacuum cleaners are even better for sucking out the water. 4. Leave phone in container of uncasked rice awarnight to absorb any excess meisture. 5. New re-insert the battery and turn on

6. Still dead? Plug in the phone without the bettery, if that works, just buy a new battery. And next time try staying off

ARMAKING IS SCIENCE. NOT ART. There are limitations on the automotive designer's nen, hundreds of creativity-stiffing rules concacted by governments concerned for your safety. But it wasn't always like this. A few decades ago, on immassioned draftsman could sketch up an impossible daydroom, and if the circumstances were right, that dream would see showrooms. The stunning Jaguar E. Type, for example, was laid out by a former aircraft engineer with a fertish for aerodynamic formulas, the Lamborehini Miura was designed by an Italian who led with his croses. But such beauty is now uncommon—it requires too many compromises for modern life, and compromises do not beln a car company's bottom fine. @ Only every so often, they do. Which beings us to the Escuire Car of the Year 9 Unlike some awards namels, here we do not assign points to contenders or tally the results according to some impenetrable formula. We so with what stirs the loins. The Car of the Year should be lustworthy and stylish, but it should also be good value, attainable for the average man. It should confidently ferry your boss to lunch yet never suggest that you've spent unnecessarily. It should swallow your commute as easily as a cross-country trip and inhale a winding back

The world of sports has shrunk: You follow your tearn, your gut, your city. You glance at scores on your phone. Or you don't follow anything, you just tune in or the big events now and then, the way you'd stick your head out the window to watch a raccon fight a cut and then return to your life but the world of sports is bigger than even. It turns out. More leagues, more cities, more personalities, more personalities more teams, more stats, or the personalities in the state of the personal them to be and what more to get excited about.
